

Billy Milton

Billy is a director of a negotiating company and a gifted and entertaining speaker. He likes nothing better than a good, tough negotiation... except perhaps passing his knowledge onto others. He holds regular training seminars with businesses where he coaches both sales and procurement personnel to maximise their potential.

Billy is a passionate and enthusiastic public speaker who has spent the past 20 years working for the largest 'not-for-profit' organisation in the world... the church. Before becoming a minister he spent 16 years working in industry as a management accountant and now teaches communication and presentation skills and negotiation strategies in the corporate world.

His recent clients have included the RAC, Transitions Lenses, Avis and M.B.I. Publishing.

When he is not working he enjoys most sports but his real passion is long distance running and he is always in training for his next marathon.

Oh... and he's Scottish!
